A crowd gathers at the home of Jeff Bush after he was consumed by a sinkhole Friday in Seffner, Fla. GETTYIMAGES

Picking up the pieces

Workers try to stabilize property after sinkhole swallows man alive

Reuters

SEFFNER, Fla. A wrecking crew on Sunday partly razed a Florida house where a sinkhole had swallowed up a man as he slept, but the demolition team went about its job as carefully as possible to preserve the home's contents for survivors.

Rescue workers had given up the search for Jeff Bush, a 37-year-old landscaper, on Saturday. He was presumed dead after disappearing into the hole, which opened up under his bedroom Thursday night. Sinkholes are common in Florida due to the state's geology, and they are virtually impossible to predict.

With a crowd of a few dozen family members and others watching, a boom crane clawed at the one-story suburban home for about two hours, demolishing about half of it. The job was due to be completed Monday.

Jeremy Bush, Jeff's brother, who had jumped into the sinkhole in a futile attempt to save him, said the family was discussing plans for a memorial service and a possible marker at the site.

Asked how he was feeling, Bush, 36, told Reuters: "Just sad, sad that they couldn't get my brother out."

"He was a good guy. He would give you the shirt off his back," Bush said of his brother.

Five other people in the house, which is owned by the family of Jeremy Bush's francee, had been preparing for bed Thursday when they heard a loud crash and Bush screaming.

Once the house is torn down, efforts will begin to stabilize the sinkhole, said William Puz, a spokesman for Hillsborough County. The hole was about to feet wide and 60 feet deep and filled with clay and debris. The crane's bucket first removed the garage eaves from the house along with a U.S. flag there, carrying it to the sidewalk. Hillsborough County Fire Rescue workers folded the flag and handed it to family members.

A horrifying reality

leuters

The risk of sinkholes is common in Florida due to the state's porous geological bedrock, according to the Florida Department of Environmental Protection.

As rainwater filters into the ground, it dissolves the rock, causing erosion that can lead to underground caverns, which cause sinkholes when they collapse.

Two nearby houses have been evacuated because the sinkhole has weakened the ground under them, and their residents probably will never be allowed inside again, Jessica Damico of Hillsborough County Fire Rescue said.

They were allowed 20 to 30 minutes in their homes Saturday to gather belongings.

Your alarm clock has been replaced

Just like Channing Tatum's character in "Magic Mike" (Ha! How's that for a way to start a column? You have no idea where the hell I'm going with this ...), I consider myself an entrepreneur.

Now I finally have an idea that's so good, I can practically smell the billions of dollars that I'll soon keep in my scepter-shaped swimming pool.

If you're like me, there's basically no alarm clock on the planet that can effectively wake you up. Even when the noise blaring out of those tinny speakers sounds like someone re-enacting scenes from Mel Gibson's "Passion of the Christ" on a pig, you can just roll it into a pleasant dream about pie or Smurfs or purple clouds. Either that or you hit the snooze bar every 15 minutes for the next five hours and consider the problem solved.

That's why you need my Shocking News Alarm Service. You simply set your wake-up time, and every day a representative calls you with a piece of news that gets your heart cracking against your ribs.

"Dana Moran?"

[Groggy, sleepy] "Yes?"

"You're pregnant with Joakim Noah's child." How could you stay asleep after that?

The key is that it can either be good or bad news, and you'll never be sure which, so you'll be eager to scramble for your phone each morning. For instance, how could you not spring to life when hearing that:

"The second 'Matrix' movie is entirely true."

"Sean Hannity is your real father. Your mother met him during a layover at the San Francisco airport in 1982."

"You've just been hired for a high-paying new job. Bring your wire cutters. The ticket to Pakistan is already booked."

Right now, the alarm-industrial complex relies on our collective acquiescence to a late capitalist impulse to subject ourselves to the grinding hamster-wheel mentality of the modern workplace. I simply want to take that impulse and add some heart-rending shock and

"Matt Lindner?"

[Groggy, sleepy] "Um, hello?"

"You've won a $50 million contest to donate one testicle to science. We'll be over in 10 minutes to collect it."

Obviously, after long enough you'd catch on that some of these scenarios are not plausible, making them somewhat less shocking. In this case, you'd upgrade to the Shocking News Alarm Service Premium Package, in which our representatives actually create shocking news to provide you reason to leap out of bed.

"There's a nest of baby mole rats in your sock drawer. They are hungry."

"Your dream of becoming a rock star has been set up. You're due on stage at the United Center in 20 minutes."

"Remember Tiffany Jones, the girl who used to call you 'flat' in 7th grade? She's having morning sex with your boyfriend."

"Tom Cruise is standing right outside your door, grinning creepily, with flowers, right

It will be the most successful business since Henry Ford rolled the Model T off the factory line. # How To Get Rid Of Knee Pain Once And For All... Without Drugs, Shots, or Surgery

Now, in Downtown Chicago, IL, one doctor is helping local residents with knee pain live more active, pain-free lives.

Living with knee pain can feel like a crippling experience.

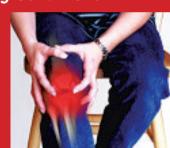

Let's face it, your knees aren't as young as you used to be, and playing with the kids or grandkids isn't any easier either. Maybe your knee pain keeps you from walking short distances or playing golf like you used to.

Nothing's worse than feeling great mentally, but physically feeling held back from life because your knee hurts and the pain just won't go away!

My name is Dr. Paul Ruzila, owner of Chicago Chiropractic & Wellness. Since we opened eight years ago, we've seen hundreds of people with knee problems leave the office pain free.

Do You Have Any of the Following Conditions?

- Arthritis
- Knee pain
- Cartilage damage
- 'Bone-on-bone'
- Tendonitis
- Bursitis
- Crunching and popping sounds

Here's What Our Patients Say... "I was in denial about my knees as I winced on stairs, and put off going for a run. I didn't want to hear that I needed surgical intervention. I admit I was skeptical about how my knees could be improved with such non-invasive procedures. But I am happy to report that I was wrong. I went for my first run in about 18 months. NO PAIN! Thanks for relieving my knee pain!" - Jeff K.

If you're suffering from these conditions, a new breakthrough in medical technology may completely eliminate your pain and help restore normal function to your knees.

Finally, You Have An Option Other Than Drugs or Surgery

New research in a treatment called low level laser therapy, or cold laser, is having a profound effect on patients suffering with knee pain. Unlike the cutting type of laser seen in movies and used in medical procedures, the cold laser penetrates the surface of the skin with no heating effect or damage.

Cold laser therapy has been tested for 40 years, had over 2000 papers published on it, and been shown to aid in damaged tissue regeneration, decrease inflammation, relieve pain and boost the immune system. This means that there is a good chance cold laser therapy could be your knee pain solution, allowing you to live a more active lifestyle.

Professional athletes like Lance Armstrong and team members of the New England Patriots rely upon cold laser therapy to treat their sports-related injuries. These guys use the cold laser for one reason only...

It Promotes Rapid Healing Of The Injured Tissues.

Before the FDA would clear the cold laser for human use, they wanted to see proof that it worked. This led to two landmark studies.

The first study showed that patients who had cold laser therapy had 53% better improvement than those who had a placebo. The second study showed patients who used the laser therapy had less pain and more range of motion days after treatment. If the cold laser can help these patients, it can help you too.

Could This Non-Invasive, Natural Treatment Be The Answer To Your Knee Pain?

For 10 days only, I'm running a very special offer where you can find out if you are a candidate for cold laser therapy.

What does this offer include? Everything I normally do in my "Knee Pain Evaluation." Just call before March 18, 2013 and here's what you'll get...

- An in-depth consultation about your problem where I will listen... really listen...to the details of your case.
- A complete neuromuscular examination.
- A full set of specialized x-rays to determine if arthritis is contributing to your pain.
- A thorough analysis of your exam and x-ray findings so we can start mapping out your plan to being pain free.
- You'll see everything first hand and find out if this amazing treatment will be your pain solution, like it has been for so many other patients.

Until March 18, 2013 you can get everything I've listed here for only $35. The normal price for this type of evaluation including x-rays is $250, so you're saving a considerable amount by taking me up on this offer.

REDEYE | MONDAY, MARCH 4, 2013

A new treatment is helping patients with knee pain live a happier, more active lifestyle.

Remember what it was like before you had knee problems. When you were pain free and could enjoy everything life had to offer. It can be that way again. Don't neglect your problem any longer – don't wait until it's too late.

Here's what to do now:

Due to the expected demand for this special offer, I urge you to call our office at once. The phone number is 312-212-1150.

Call today and we can get started with your talk, exam and x-rays as soon as there's an opening in the schedule. Our office is called Chicago Chiropractic & Wellness and you can find us in downtown Chicago. Tell the receptionist you'd like to come in for the Knee Evaluation before March 18, 2013.

Sincerely,

Dr. Paul Ruzila. D.C.

P.S. Now you might be wondering...

"Is this safe? Are there any side effects or dangers to this?"

The FDA cleared the first cold laser in 2002. This was after their study found 76% improvement in patients with carpal tunnel syndrome. Their only warning – don't shine it in your eyes.

Of course at our office, the laser is never anywhere near your eyes and we'll give you a comfortable pair of goggles for safety.

Don't wait and let your knee problems get worse, disabling you for life. Take me up on my offer and call today 312-212-1150.

No way around it-Brown Line shutdown will bring the pain

Chicago Tribune

Mayor Emanuel and other city officials on Sunday urged CTA riders to take extra time for their commutes Monday, when travel will be disrupted for some due to the reconstruction of the Wells Street Bridge.

CTA service on the bridge, which carries Brown and Purple line trains over the Chicago River, was shut down Friday night so crews could begin replacing the bridge's southern half. Train service isn't scheduled to resume over the bridge until March II, meaning thousands of commuters will have to find new ways to get in and out of the Loop this week.

The nine-day shutdown likely will frustrate some CTA riders, but the project was timed so it would affect only one work week, Emanuel said during a news conference at the Merchandise Mart station.

"It's going to be an inconvenience," Emanuel said as workers dismantling part of the bridge toiled behind him. "You can't spin your way out of that. It is going to be an inconvenience. On the other hand, of the nine days, four out of the nine are on the weekend, when there's less commuter business traffic."

The short-term pain of a longer commute is more than balanced out by the benefits of extending the bridge's life span by at least another 75 years, CTA President Forrest Clay-

"They should just budget a little bit more time to [commute] during this week," Claypool said. "But the minor inconvenience of this week will be well worth it given the ability to replace this bridge, which is absolutely critical to the travel artery here in the city, both by car and by rail.*

Brown Line trains will operate much less frequently during most of the day-running every 10 to 12 minutes, officials said. And Purple Line Express service is canceled until March 11. Purple Line local service will continue to operate between Howard Street in Chicago and Linden Avenue in Wilmette.

On weekends, Green, Pink and Orange line trains will terminate their runs at certain stations in the downtown area, officials said. A free weekend shuttle bus will operate to link the Chicago/Franklin, Merchandise Mart, Clark/Lake, Washington/Wells and Clinton/ Lake stations, officials said.

The massive reconstruction of the 91-yearold bridge began in November, when the span was closed to vehicles and pedestrians.

Beginning Friday night, crews working around-the-clock, 12-hour shifts began dismantling the southern half of the double-decker drawbridge.

If all goes according to plan, a 500,000-pound replacement section that was floated up the river by barge last weekend will be moved into place by Tuesday.

As you get closer to the event, it does become more intense. We haven't lost a lot of time. We've been talking among ourselves."

Hundreds dive into frigid Lake Michigan to raise money for Special Olympics

Chicago Tribune

With beachfront snow plowed back to reveal a frigid layer of slush, more than 1,000 Chicagoans turned out Sunday morning to take a dip in the 32-degree waters of Lake Michigan.

Organizers hoped the annual Polar Plunge held at North Avenue Beach would raise $1 million for Special Olympics.

Lisa Ousley-Taylor, a special education teacher from Flossmoor, was preparing for her first dive. Ousley-Taylor said she was there for her students, whom she has been taking to Special Olympics events since the 1980s.

Special Olympics "changes everything about the participant," she said. "It gives them self-confidence."

As her turn to dive approached, Ousley-Taylor could have used some of that self-confidence. "I'm terrified," she said.

Several politicians and cast members from NBC's "Chicago Fire" were on hand to jump in the lake.

The event couldn't have been scheduled for a more appropriate time, with the city's forecast expecting snow and cold later in the week.

Chicago could be buried under half a foot of snow by midweek, forecasters say, adding another harsh chapter to a winter that started out balmy.

The National Weather Service issued a winter storm watch for northern Illinois and northwest Indiana for Monday night and Tuesday. According to the agency, there will be light snow, about an inch in accumulation, beginning Monday; the main storm will hit Monday evening and continue until Tuesday evening, adding about six more inches.

National Weather Service meteorologist Amy Seeley said it's too early to talk specific snow totals or to know which part of the region will be hit hardest.

Winds could gust up to 20 mph on Tuesday, but the thermometer isn't expected to drop much below freezing. An overnight low of 28 on Wednesday is the coldest temperature in the weather service's seven-day forecast.

A 21-year-old woman was shot in the neck as she rode in a car early Sunday morning on the Far North Side, one of at least five people shot Sunday morning, police said.

Several people were in the car at about 12:15 a.m., when a male shooter approached on foot and started firing, Chicago Police Department News Affairs Officer Hector Alfaro said.

After the shooting, which happened near the intersection of West Rosemont and North Claremont avenues in West Rogers Park, the car's driver sped into an alley just east of North Western Avenue.

As the car was moving northbound through the alley, it crashed into another vehicle, and its occupants—including the woman who had been shot—took off running, according to police.

First responders found the woman half a block northwest of the crash, at the northwest corner of Western and West Devon avenues.

The woman was brought to St. Francis Hospital in Evanston, where her condition was stabilized, Alfaro said.

After the shooting, police blocked off the alley as they searched for evidence at the scene of the crash. Two red sedans remained in the alley, with debris lying between them and two doors still open on one of the cars.

Further south in the alley, police officers searched with flashlights for shell casings. It was not immediately clear exactly where the shooting took place, Alfaro said.

No suspects were in custody as Area North detectives investigated. Police did not immediately comment on a motive for the shooting.

Shootings also were recorded in Back of the Yards, Englewood, Gage Park and New City. Police were investigating, No suspects were in custody.

Doctors: Baby is fully cured of HIV

ATLANTA Doctors say that for the first time ever they have cured an infant born with HIV, by giving her a cocktail of drugs shortly after birth, a result that could point the way toward saving the lives of thousands more infected children.

The baby, whose identity has been kept anonymous, began taking a regimen of AIDS drugs about 30 hours after she was born at a rural Mississippi hospital, doctors said Sunday at a medical meeting in Atlanta. At 18 months, the mother took the child off the medication. With no signs of the virus for 10 months, the infant was deemed "functionally cured," researchers said.

HIV treatments can hold the disease at bay, though stopping the drugs can be a death sentence since it allows infected cells secreted within the immune system to reemerge, spreading the virus anew. Administering the mix of drugs right after birth may have stopped the virus from forming hidden reservoirs. If confirmed in further studies, the approach could help cure some of the 300,000 children infected each year with the AIDS virus.

"Some babies here in the U.S. and Western Europe, and an awful lot of babies in the developing world, don't have the opportunity for prevention," said Hannah Gay, who treated the infant at the University of Mississippi in Jackson. "There would be scores of babies that would benefit if we can find a strategy for intervention that allows us to make this happen in other babies."

Doctors reported the result at the Conference on Retroviruses and Opportunistic Infections, an annual gathering of more than 4,000 infectious disease researchers.

NCAA FOOTBALL 1907-17 Washington Huskies: 63 games

The Huskies went 59-0-4 in this stretch. Right up there are the Oklahoma Sooners, who actually won 47 straight from 1953-57.

NCAA BASKETBALL 1971-74 UCLA Bruins: 74 games

This ridiculous record doesn't even count the 14 straight postseason games the Bruins won, which would bring this up to 88.

2008 and 2009 Indianapolis Colts: 23 games

Hawks are America's team now

Quialev

It was a 20-minute span Sunday afternoon that clinched it for me. The time it took for Patrick Kane's game-tying goal to sneak through a sliver of open net to Detroit goaltender Jimmy Howard's left, followed by a time-bending shootout move that henceforth should be known as The Kaner.

It's time to start considering the 2013 Blackhawks' place in history. It's time. Doesn't matter that it's a short season-that isn't a factor when the team being considered literally doesn't lose.

Yes, they will lose in regulation this season. They'll lose a couple. Hell, they'll probably drop a terrible fifth-game-in-eightnights kind of game to Columbus along the way. It'll suck to watch, and then you'll remember they've won all the other games and it won't suck so bad. Then you'll look at your outstretched hand and realize you have more fingers on it than they'll have regulation losses, and it won't suck at all.

Points percentage is the only way to compare this 48-game slate to the normal 82-game or 80-or-fewer schedules of the past. The best team of the modern era was the 1976-77 Montreal Canadiens, who rolled up 82.5 percent of all possible points, going 60-8-12. The Blackhawks have nabbed 93.2 percent thus far. The magic number to reach this season is 80 points, and the Blackhawks need only 39 in their remaining 26 games to hit it. A now-pedestrian 19-6-1 would do it. It is going to happen.

There's really only one pro team to compare them to, and it isn't a hockey team. It's a team that shared the same building, in fact. A team you'd watch and not wonder IF they'd win, but HOW AWESOMELY they'd win. I don't need to type their name. If you hadn't made the connection before, you have now.

After an Olympic-quality nationally televised game airing in an early-Sunday sports vacuum, you're going to notice the uptick in the team's national profile. They are no longer just Chicago's team. America loves a winner, and the Blackhawks are America's hockey team now. If they maintain this pace, they'll finish like that other team. And the world will be next.

N. Korean leader: Call me, Obama

WASHINGTON Dennis Rodman, the former Bulls star known more for his tattoos and rebounding prowess than diplomacy skills, said Sunday he returned from North Korea with a message from its leader Kim Jong-un for President Obama: "Call me."

Rodman appeared on ABC's "This Week" a few days after an unlikely meeting with Kim in Pyongyang, where Rodman was working on a documentary about basketball.

With the international community concerned about North Korea's nuclear weapons program and continued belligerence, Rodman had extremely rare access to Kim. They attended a basketball game, where they were seen laughing and talking at courtside, and also had dinner together.

"He wants Obama to do one thing-call him," Rodman said. "He said, 'If you can, Dennis-I don't want [to] do war. I don't want to do war.' He said that to me."

Rodman said he told Kim, who followed his father and grandfather as leader of the isolated totalitarian nation in December 2011, that his love of basketball could serve as a foundation of a relationship with the U.S. president, who also is a basketball fan and plays regularly.

"[Kim] loves basketball. And I said the same thing. I said, 'Obama loves basketball.' Let's start there," Rodman said.

The U.S. government disavowed any connection to Rodman's trip. When asked about Kim's "call me" message, Caitlin Hayden, a spokeswoman for the White House Nation-

*We have urged the North Korean leadership to heed President Obama's call to choose the path of peace and come into compliance with its international obligations," Hayden said. *Instead of spending money on staging sporting events, the North Korean regime should focus on the well-being of its own people, who have been starved, imprisoned and denied their human rights."

So that's a maybe ...

It's gonna take more than Magic-Johnson, that is-to get LeBron James in the NBA slam dunk contest. "Shoot, All-Star weekend is how far away?" James said of next February's showcase. "So I'm really not thinking about right now. It was entertaining to hear him say that, though," Johnson had offered the Miami star $1 million to participate.

It was a very frustrating day because I wanted to show the world how well I could kick .... But between the pain and the risk of further injury, I thought it was best to stop."-Lauren Silberman, who ended her attempt to become the first female player in the NFL after two kickoffs.

That's when White Sox starting pitcher John Danks, who is recovering from shoulder surgery, will face opposing major league hitters for the first time since May 19. Danks will get the start in the Sox's spring training game against San Francisco.

BOTIE BATTLE

This Chicago gamer is living the geek dream: Making giant robots beat the crap out of each other

By Ryan Smith | FORREDCYE

Keisha Howard's wildest video game fantasy came true as a contestant on Syfy's competition series "Robot Combat League."

The 28-year-old Lakeview resident was chosen as one of a dozen "robo-jockeys" for the show, which pits 8-foot-tall, half-ton humanoid robots against each other in a series of arena-style boxing matches to compete for a $100,000 prize. The bot-on-bot action resembles Hugh Jackman's hit movie, "Real Steel"—the shadowboxing moves of exo suit-wearing operators directly translate into metal-on-metal jabs.

"Robot Combat League," hosted by WWE wrestler Chris Jericho, debuted Feb. 26 and drew drawing 1.3 million total viewers. It airs at 9 p.m. Tuesdays on Syfy.

Howard is used to duking it out with virtual bad guys on Xbox and PlayStation, as Seeing the sparks fly and the hydraulic fluid fly around and the noise from the crowd out there cheering ... It was epic."

-Keisha Howard on her experience in battle the founder of a female gaming organization in Chicago called Sugar Gamers. But nothing could truly prepare her for this grown-up version of "Rock 'Em Sock 'Em Robots."

"I'd never really done anything like this before. I'm not a fighter, I'm a gamer," Howard told RedEye. "It sounded a little bit like the [Xbox motion controller] Kinect, where it mimics your movements, but it's a totally different experience once you're actually doing it."

The hydraulic-powered machines actually are operated by teams of two: a fighter ("robojockey") and an engineer ("robo-tech"). When Howard and her teammate, Swedish robotics engineer Annika O'Brien, compete with their robot called Game Over, Howard will throw the uppercuts. O'Brien will control the 'bot's legs and fix up broken wires and leaking fluids between rounds like a tech-savvy corner man treating a boxer's black eye.

The 12 robots featured in "Robot Combat League" were created and designed by robotics expert Mark Setrakian ("Hellboy," "Men in Black"). Each machine boasts its own unique design, strengths and weaknesses. "Medieval," for instance, was fitted with chain mail coverings and metal crests so that it resembles an armored knight from medieval Europe.

Howard was initially worried that her allfemale team would be stuck with a "pink, super-girly robot," but the automaton, also named Game Over, is a hulking steel creation with a static-filled video monitor as a head.

"I loved it. It could not have been more perfect in concept," Howard said. "It was one of the biggest and tallest and the screen made it feel a little creepy, in a good way."

The 24 contestants had about two weeks to prepare for bouts, which included participating in some challenges against small sparring bots.

"I also played some [video] games like 'Soulcalibur' to practice fighting and see moves being executed on screen," Howard said.

Each fight in "Robot Combat League" consists of three rounds. Judges observe and crown a winner based on points or a technical knockout that renders a 'bot unable to move. In last week's premiere, top-rated robot Steel Cyclone took on bottom-dweller Crash, a 'bot controlled by father-daughter software engineers based in Portland, Ore. Spoiler alert: The scrappy Crash crushed Steel Cyclone.

"It's crazy when you're in there," Howard said. "Seeing the sparks fly and the hydraulic fluid fly around and the noise from the crowd out there cheering. ... It was epic."

Besides the tech engineers and the gamers, some of the other robo-jockeys chosen were a race car driver, a National Guard helicopter pilot, and former Olympians and athletes—including "Star Wars" creator George Lucas' daughter Amanda, a Mixed Martial Arts fighter. The athletes had the physical advantage, Howard said, but robot fighting rendered that edge somewhat moot.

"Those guys are used to physical feedback that tells them if they are getting burt or burting their opponent," said Howard. "This was more like gaming, where you fight without the feedback and it's more about focus and hand-eye coordination."

Howard wasn't ready to spoil the ultimate winner of the "Robot Combat League," but she did say that the show was a perfect fit for her.

"I didn't want to be part of a reality show where it's like 12 girls competing for one penis," she said. "I wanted to be part of something that required skill and intellect, so this was perfect."

"This wasn't 'Jersey Shore.' The show is full of nerds and a lot of very accomplished people."

MORE FIGHTING ALREADY!

The last thing you want from a competition series called "Robot Combat League" is to dwell on the personalities of its human contestants like "Top Chef,"

"Survivor" and a million other such shows do. You just want to see giant robots beating the circuitry out of each other.

"Robot Combat League" takes too long to get to the 'bot battles each week, but once there, it's nothing but rock 'em, sock 'em fun as two-ton robots with names like Brimstone, Thunder Skull and Robo Hammer clash.

Sparks fly, parts break off, hydraulic fluid sprays. At least each episode ends with 10 minutes of awesome.

Up to speed on running shoes

Los Angeles Times

The world's largest sporting goods companies are saying new high-rebound foam will take running to a new level and revolutionize the athletic shoe world. Below are four of the latest technologies (tested in men's shoes but all available for women too) that might just help you shave a minute off your marathon time provided, of course, that you combine them with old-fashioned training.

TRAMPOLINE EFFECT

Adidas Energy Boost $150 at adidas.com

A lightweight shoe featuring foam midsoles composed of hundreds of capsules of expanded TPU (thermoplastic polyurethane), which claims to combine shock-absorption qualities with a higher energy-rebound

Likes: It works. The shoes, which hit stores Wednesday. are noticeably bouncy and energizing. The stretchy upper has a comfy secondskin feel. Weight: 10.5 ounces in size 9.5. Dislikes: None

SOFT AND HARD

On CloudRacer $129 at on-running.com

Lightweight shoe from a Swiss company that features its simple but innovative "Cloud-Tec" shock absorption, 13 half-circles of rubber on the sole that compress and quickly return to form. Theoretically, that allows you to land "soft" but push off "hard." Likes: It works well and feels fast. Light at 9 ounces in size 9, it provides the good ground feel of a more minimalist shoe while offering decent protection. Dislikes: The 2-inch oval bump on the removable foot bed was uncomfortable and felt better with the pads removed altogether.

New Balance Minimus Hi-Rez $120 at newbalance.com

Crazy-light foot glove for minimalist runners who are not quite ready to go barefoot. It has a midsole-outsole composed of 42 EVA pods whose independent movement purportedly allows for better ground feel than a unified sole.

Likes: Barely there at 4.5 ounces in size 9.5, this speedy, super-flexible sock-shoe transmits a pseudo-barefoot feeling. One the whole, a great shoe for minimalist runners. It will be available April 1.

Dislikes: Not quite as comfortable as the independent-toed Vibram FiveFingers Komodo Sport.

MARATHON FLYWEIGHT

Nike Flyknit Racer $160 at nike.com

Ultra-light, cushioned shoe that mates a highly engineered, seamless, sock-like knit upper with integrated tongue to a conventional EVA

Likes: A great 10k or marathon shoe due to its combination of light weight (4.6 ounces in size 9) with cushioning. This not a minimalist shoe but an ultralight shoe for those who want some cushioning on race day.

Dislikes: The price. A cheap, barely-there racing flat, a bit less comfy, will cost half as much.

Bad dates, great stories

Chicago Tribune

Anna Goldfarb once dated a man who jumped out of bed at 7 a.m. on a Saturday to attend a marathon session of Dungeons & Dragons. She went on a second date with a man who got so drunk he broke his glasses, smashed a party photographer's camera, yelled at a cop and passed out on the bathroom floor. One particularly persistent suitor hounded her to come over during a massive snowstorm, only to kick her out so he could spend part of the snow-in with another woman.

She might have known that last guy was trouble, because his idea of a first date was to invite her to a concert in New Jersey, then uninvite her-but suggest that she pick him up after the concert so they could go out for a drink.

"It's like he put my name under 'cab service' in his phone," says Goldfarb, 34, author of a book of dating essays, *Clearly, I Didn't Think This Through:

The Story of One Tall Girl's Impulsive, Ill-Conceived, and Borderline Irresponsible Life Decisions."

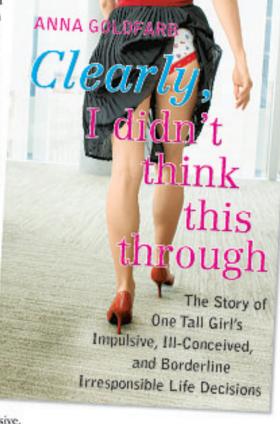

The following is an edited transcript of a recent conversation.

Your criticisms of your dates may be small, but they point to bigger issues.

I feel like I can get away with the criticisms I make because I'm not mean; I'm more funny. I genuinely like most of the guys I'm with. There's a quality that attracts me to them, so I really try to articulate that pretty clearly: I hung out with this guy because he did this. And I think I'm also really honest about my own faults. I'm not under any particular illusion that I'm, like, this great catch. I have my own foibles.

Please tell me you had some great dates you didn't write about.

Huh ... well ... I've had some great dates. I had this really great date with this doctor, but I saw on his shelf [a photo of him] in drama club in high school, one of the behind-thescenes guys in the black shirt and black pants, and that really turned me off. Just the thought of him scrambling around in a black turtleneck.

Did you tell him that or make an excuse?

It was kind of mutual. I was living with my parents, and he was solving medical problems. We probably were destined to diverge at some point.

LESSON LEARNED

Anna Goldfarb has this advice for daters: "I would say to avoid looking at anything on Facebook or Twitter beforehand if you can. Guys treat their Facebook like a junk drawer; it's a rampant problem. They just put whatever [dumb] stuff they have on Facebook, and I get easily swayed by that. I'm prone to making judgments anyway; I'm pretty judgmental. Try not to feed that dragon."

ROMANCE PLANET

BY JENNIFER SHEPHERD I READ MORE AT LIPSTICK MYSTIC COM

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Venus is creating a spirit of healing and forgiveness. You'll finally let go of that ex who did you wrong, realizing it all was a good learning experience for you. It's time to move on.

Aries March 21-April 19 You could clash with someone who is your complete opposite as Mars kicks up some sparks. Do you hate this person, or do you nurse a secret passion for him or her? Time will tell if this becomes a super-hot romance.

Taurus April 20-May 20 You'll be attracted to people who are creative and sensitive, just like you. The sun is inspiring you to surround yourself with kindred spirits. You're getting tired of selfish, aggres-

Gemini May 21-June 21 You're wondering if you've been dating the wrong type of person. Maybe you should look for a truly intelligent partner instead of settling for the first person who agrees to go out with you.

Cancer June 22-July 22 Since the moon is opposite your sign, avoiding getting pulled into pointless arguments. If your girlfriend asks you if those jeans make her look fat, say no.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22 As a Fire sign, you're friendly and outgoing. But deep down, you're more insecure. Right now you could be interested in dating someone who would appreciate getting to know the real you. The moon says be yourself.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22 The moon has you questioning those recent romantic decisions. Perhaps you shouldn't be chasing after that married lady, even if she is into you. Think things through.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 You could be inspired to start a whole new career, thanks to adventurous Jupiter. Maybe it's time to take up professional ice skating or pole dancing. You're in the mood to get others to notice you.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21 Mercury is helping the flow of communication. If you've been thinking about sending some flirtatious text messages, you'll find just the right words.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21 You might need to hold your tongue as the moon reminds you that other people don't always appreciate your sharp words. Don't tell your boyfriend about how many people you've slept with; he won't handle

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19 You could receive some good news, courtesy of a happy moon. That medical screening will come back negative. And maybe, just maybe, you'll arrange a romantic weekend with someone.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18 Sometimes it's best to pay attention to details. Remember that girlie underwear you found at your guy's apartment? Do you recall the text message you saw on your girlfriend's phone from her supposed "ex"? Look a little closer.

Sharpen your claws for 'The Bachelor's' tell-all episode

By Adam Lukach | REDEVE

Catfights, kissyfaces ... and a "virgin" bachelor? (Born-again, so does not count, dude.) Season 17 of "The Bachelor"-at least among the people I've spoken to-has been especially terrible. But I think we can all be excited for the tell-all episode airing at 7 p.m. Monday on ABC, if for no other reason than to get some old-fashioned dirt. Come for the cattiness, stay for the facial expressions, ALUKACH@TRIBUNE.COM | @LUCHEEZY

AshLee

First impressions: The Kind, Feel-Good Story One In reality: The Dramatic. Annoying One

Big Moment: Going toe-totoe with Tierra and actually getting her eliminated Downfall: Constantly finding a way to reference her difficult foster-child upbringing

Best quote: "I never wanna break a fusion to this man." Chances of being "The Bachelorette": 60 percent

Lesley M.

First impression: Frontrunning fan-favorite In reality: Flameout

Big Moment: Setting the Guinness world record for the longest on-screen kiss. At the time, Bachelor Sean said, "We had so much fun breaking the world record." Downfall: Not telling Sean she loved him-it was like watching a middle-schooler waiting to make a move at the movies.

Best quote: "Weak people piss me off and losing pisses me off and not getting more time with Sean pisses

Chances of being "The Bachelorette": 35 percent

Tierra

First impression: The Villain

In reality: The Super-Villain Big Moment: Having a huge fight with AshLee during which she mocked AshLee for being old and claimed AshLee couldn't control her evebrows. Tierra also talked at length about her "sparkle."

Downfall: That fight, and generally being bitchy Best quote: "If I wanna get engaged I can go get engaged. There are plenty of (bleeping) guys in the world."

Chances of being "The Bachelorette": O percent (Spoiler: she's already engaged to her ext)

Selma

First impression: The Kinda-Slutty One In reality: The Very

Religious One Big Moment: Making a big play to not be eliminated and kissing Sean on her last night. Previously, she hadn't kissed him because her culture would have frowned upon it.

Downfall: Unknown, but she's now dating Arie Luyendyk, the former "Bachelorette" fave everyone wanted for this season, so maybe she's the real winner.

Best quote: "I love the way you say 'my wife.' Chances of being "The Bachelorette": 5 percent

First impression: Comeback Kid (made it to the final four last season)

In reality: "Oh, yeah, I forgot she was on there!" Best Moment: None Downfall: Everything she weekend to win the domestic box office, Reuters reports. If that sounds like a lot, Reuters reports the 3-D movie cost $189 million to produce and millions more to market. Ouch!

Best quote: "I'm not supposed to cry this early."

That's how much "The Hobbit: An Unexpected Journey" has earned worldwide, thewrap.com reports. Of that total, roughly $700 million comes from international earnings.

HOT DATES March 8-9

That's when Illinois native Nick Offerman, star of "Somebody Up There Likes Me," will introduce the movie at the 7:30 p.m. and 9:45 p.m. screenings at Music Box Theatre. He'll also participate in Q&As after the screenings. Tickets are $10 at musicboxtheatre.com.

Unhappy birthday?

Justin Bieber is feeling the love after tweeting "Worst birthday" to his millions of followers. Turns out the now 19-yearold was booted from a London club because members of his entourage were underage (18 is of age in the U.K.). But well-wishing fans cheered him up: "U got me smiling," he later tweeted. Aww!

I went on this quest to stop wetting the bed, and the first day that I had a sleepover and I didn't wet the bed, it was like one of the greatest days of my life."

-Sean Combs, talking about a childhood issue on "The Ellen DeGeneres Show"

From fantasy to fairy tale? Former Hogwarts star pupil Emma Watson is in talks to play Cinderella in a liveaction adaptation of the classic fairy tale, variety.com reports. Watson reportedly would match wits with Cate Blanchett, who would play the wicked stepmother. Would it be too much to ask fellow "Harry Potter" star Rupert Grint to play Prince Charming?
